

Media?

Meet Justice.

a cross-movement strategy session

Reclaim the Media and the NW Media Action Grassroots Network (MAG-Net) invite you to join in a discussion on grassroots media activism and social justice.

Media and communications technology issues create problems and solutions for all social justice struggles, from immigrant rights to food justice to economic oppression. Seattle media justice organizers returned from Detroit this summer inspired by the Allied Media Conference and the US Social Forum. Their reports will launch us into a creative, strategic conversation about how community media, media justice and social justice groups can work together in the Northwest to strengthen our work together for social change.

Weds Oct. 20 6:30pm

Hidmo 20th + Jackson, Seattle

Bring your questions and your ideas about current hot-button media issues such as media racism, affordable Internet, net neutrality, low power community radio, and local public access TV. Learn about media training opportunities available from MAG-Net member groups, and help Reclaim the Media develop our strategic priorities for 2011!

Organized by Reclaim the Media with Hidmo, KBCS and Communities Against Rape and Abuse. Northwest MAG-Net member organizations also include the Community Alliance for Global Justice, One America, Ozya, Pinay Sa Seattle, Real Change, Reel Grrls, The Vera Project, Youngstown Creative Arts Center and the Youth Media Institute. Contact us at info@reclaimthemedialog.org for more information on this event, joining Reclaim the Media, or adding your organization become part of MAG-Net.
