

KPCN Low Power FM Barnraising with Prometheus Radio Project

18-20 August 2006, Pineros y Campesinos Unidos del Noroeste, Woodburn, OR

Invited by the union/social justice nonprofit PCUN and the Prometheus Radio Project, scores of community radio activists from the Northwest and across the Americas came to Woodburn for this weekend-long barnraising. Participants held participatory education-based workshops and panels on a variety of radio-related topics, at the same time building out studios and transmitter facilities for PCUN's new LPFM radio station KPCN. Reclaim the Media was there to solder, hammer, carry water, offer trainings, and help build relationships between regional stations in anticipation of the NW Community Radio Summit, held in Seattle the following month.
